Annual Report

2014-15

This year HRWC celebrated our 50th anniversary with music, recreation, food and drink, and poetry.

Thank you for marking this milestone with us. For the past 50 years, we've been working hard to improve our watershed and we are seeing great results. More people are enjoying the recreational opportunities that our river provides. Their experiences are possible because of the improvements we've made in clean water, access, fish and bird diversity, local, state, and regional protections and laws, strong master plans, enforcement, restoration, and parks in river towns! Some of the signs of a vibrant and healthy 'shed are the busiest canoe livery in the state, thousands of acres of protected high quality natural areas, a reputation as the cleanest urban river, active trails and trail towns, a national Water Trail designation, phosphorus reductions and a statewide phosphorus ban on residential lawn fertilizers, and some forward-thinking stormwater protection ordinances and rules.

That's not to say our work is done. We have a lot more to do and the HRWC board and staff have developed some guiding principles to get us there. As our accomplishments have shown, HRWC protects and restores the river for healthy and vibrant communities. Our vision is a future of clean and plentiful water for people and nature where citizens and government are effective and courageous champions for the Huron River and its watershed. To achieve that, we:

- work with a collaborative and inclusive spirit to give all partners the opportunity to become stewards;
- generate science-based, trustworthy information for decision makers to ensure reliable supplies of clean water and resilient natural systems; and
- passionately advocate for the health of the river and the lands around it.

So, what is next? We will be out in the watershed monitoring our river and streams and natural areas. We will use that information to engage stakeholders and partners in taking actions to protect and restore the watershed. We will use that information to prioritize our outreach and education and other programs. Finally, we will inspire others to get to the river, enjoy the river, have a new experience, love it as much as we do, and care about its future.

We also have a few key opportunities we need to seize upon:

1. As more people engage with the river, we need to instill a river stewardship ethic and provide clear options for action;
2. In order to develop a collaborative environment that encourages different ideas, perspectives, and experiences, we need to attract and retain volunteers, members, and stewards that represent the diversity of socioeconomic, gender, race, religion, and sexual orientation that are representative of the watershed; and
3. We need to celebrate innovative and effective solutions that are coming from the bottom up and work to build strong local leadership in support of them.

We have far-reaching goals and we need you to get them done. Please reflect on what inspires you to be a part of HRWC and where you can have an impact. And then join us as we all jump in to make the next 50 years as successful as the past 50.

For the river,

Laura Rubin,
Executive Director

Program Success

Stream Monitoring

We are now in our 23rd year of the Adopt-a-Stream Program! This past year we had over 300 volunteers participate in our events, including the Winter Stonefly Search, two River Roundups, and Measuring & Mapping. These volunteers are our eyes on the river. They help us find immediate problems, and they also collect data that we use to track the long-term health of the Huron River and its tributaries.

Our analysis of the data collected indicates that 66 percent of the watershed is near pristine or lightly impacted by human activities; 28 percent is moderately impacted; and 7 percent is highly impacted.

Our data are also very important in directing management activities. For example, Measuring & Mapping data showed a lack of good habitat in the Huron River in Ypsilanti. For the past year we have studied this section more fully, raised funds, and in Fall 2015 we will implement a fish habitat restoration project along the river in the Ypsilanti city parks.

Through our Creek Walking Program volunteers visit the same location several times over the course of a summer. We had six teams of 4-5 people walking sections of creeks like Honey Creek in Pinckney, Traver Creek in Ann Arbor, and Davis Creek in South Lyon. Their goal was to look for erosion problems and incoming water pollution, and pick up trash. The teams took pictures and recorded GPS coordinates of their observations. They explored beautiful areas like the upper sections of Boyden Creek. And they recorded interesting finds like an old car living in Portage Creek and a ten foot tall eroding bank in Millers Creek.

Climate Resilient Communities

Our Climate Resilience Communities work is improving the climate literacy of water resource managers and facilitating change that builds resilience to anticipated impacts of climate change. The project convened experts in four areas: natural areas protection and management, stormwater management, river flows and (most recently) hazard mitigation.

After three years of facilitated discussions and strategy implementation, these teams have made significant strides toward a more resilient Huron. We now have a networked community of dam operators tackling issues such as dam safety and improved flow management. More accurate rainfall data is being used in several applications, like the Washtenaw County Stormwater Rules and Ann Arbor's new stormwater model, that will make our watershed better prepared to handle larger, more intense rainfall events. We are sharing materials that teach natural areas managers how native tree species are expected to fair as temperatures increase and rainfall changes and emerging strategies for protecting our forests and urban canopy. Hazard mitigation and emergency response professionals are more aware of how weather events are expected to change and are considering how to prepare for more frequent and extreme natural hazards.

Project participants reported having a better understanding of how climate change will affect the area, are comfortable sharing that knowledge with peers and management and are advocating for change. They are also interested in moving climate adaptation strategies forward and HRWC will continue to support these efforts.

Carbon Footprint of Water

This past year HRWC calculated how much energy is used and carbon is emitted through the different stages of the domestic water cycle in the watershed. The Carbon Footprint of Water report is complete and we learned:

- Energy used to produce drinking water in the watershed is about 10 percent higher than national averages.
- Energy used to treat wastewater in the watershed is 57-76 percent higher than national averages depending on treatment type.
- Energy used in homes for water use was lower than national averages but by far the most energy intense phase of the cycle in the watershed.

Nearly 89,000 tons of carbon dioxide are emitted annually associated with our water use. Equivalent to the annual emissions from nearly 17,000 passenger vehicles, it would take more than 66,000 acres of forest one year to sequester this much carbon; more than double the combined areas of Southeast Michigan's Pinckney and Waterloo Recreation Areas. The full report is at hrwc.org/take-action/save-water-save-energy.

Bioreserve Project

HRWC partnered with the SEMIWILD collaborative, a group of Southeast Michigan land conservancies, to focus preservation efforts in the Huron River watershed. HRWC provided field assessments on properties the conservancies have targeted to pursue for protection, working with them to reach out and share findings and information with property owners.

Green Infrastructure Planning

Green Infrastructure is the network of forests, wetlands, grasslands, and waterways that make up our natural infrastructure. These natural areas provide ecosystem services like filtering pollution, slowing runoff, and keeping our streams running clear and cool. HRWC's green infrastructure for local governments program engages residents, planners, and decision-makers to map out and describe important, intact natural areas, links between them, and other smaller important natural features. The data is used to help plan for incoming development in a way that maintains those ecosystems and enact policies to protect them.

In the past year HRWC created Green Infrastructure plans and maps for Webster and Salem Townships and worked to implement previously developed plans with Dexter, Unadilla, and Lyndon Townships.

- Webster Township is updating their master plan with the map and goals for natural features protection
- Dexter, Unadilla, and Lyndon have included riparian buffer protections in their local ordinances
- Lyndon Township consulted their map in evaluating development proposals

Stormwater Management

HRWC continues to help watershed municipalities in four counties improve their stormwater management programs through collaborative efforts. Highlights from 2014-15 include:

- A growing water quality monitoring program with sites sampled across three counties and a record effort;
- Monitoring results that show nutrient reduction in the face of higher intensity storms and declining bacterial contamination trends in Washtenaw County, but broad (though stable) impaired waters in Wayne County;
- Preparing municipalities for new stormwater permit requirements by helping them develop new educational initiatives and improve stormwater management standards;
- Expanding education efforts and initiating new projects in Wayne County; and
- Completing a watershed management plan for Honey Creek which has high bacterial contamination.

Education and Outreach

- The Huron River Watershed Community Calendar marked its twelfth year in 2014-15. 275,000 calendars featuring watershed information and pollution prevention tips have been provided to residents.
- The Alliance of Downriver Watershed communities distributed 25,000 calendars featuring ADW-specific information. An ADW pet waste campaign shared tips with pet owners through 150 veterinarians and pet supply retailers.
- HRWC and community partners also distributed 6,000 copies of Waterfront Wisdom, a 12-page booklet featuring techniques for shoreline property owners to keep waterways healthy.

Last year marked the fourth year of RiverUp!, our public-private renaissance for the Huron River corridor. We are well on the way to making the river a premier destination in Michigan with an ever-growing group of partners, funders, and participants.

RiverUp!

CleanUp! Improve River Health

More than 7,600 ft of the river in Ypsilanti are being restored for the benefit of the native fishery, angling, and freshwater education. Completion is slated for Fall 2015.

Huron River
WATER TRAIL

Trash removal and woody debris management improved safety and aesthetics on the river. Four clean-ups occurred last year and five river miles were made navigable for non-motorized watercraft.

FixUp! Invest in River Recreation

Following a nine-month review, the Huron River Water Trail was designated the 18th National Water Trail by the National Park Service. This distinction makes the trail part of a network of national exemplary water trails. The benefits of designation include an elevated national profile for the trail and access to resources and best practices. Outfitters on the river tell us they have seen an increase in queries from out-of-state customers as a result.

To date, four construction projects are completed at portages and access points. The most recent projects were the new floating dock at Peninsular Park in Ypsilanti and the Barton Dam boat slide in Ann Arbor. The boat slide is a unique design created by SmithGroupJJR that allows for canoes and kayaks to move up or down the steep portage.

Our trail markers and waterproof maps are guiding trail users and improving their experience. The first edition of the Paddler's Companion sold 1,500 copies. We completed an expanded and updated second edition in 2015. The book is emulated by other trails in Michigan and around the country. Most of the water trail signs are installed along the 104 river miles to guide trail users as well as emergency personnel.

BuildUp! Turn Our Communities to Face the River

A Trail Town is a destination where trail users can venture off the trail to enjoy the scenery, services, heritage and character of a nearby community. HRWC facilitated Trail Town teams in Milford, Dexter, Ann Arbor, Ypsilanti, and Flat Rock and supported their efforts to become trail-ready.

In 2014-15 we created three mini-documentaries that tell stories of RiverUp! through film. "Fly Fishing the Huron" was the first release and features small business owner Mike Schultz, a successful outfitter in Ypsilanti and a catalyst for the vibrant community of small mouth bass anglers and river enthusiasts. The second film, "The Making of Mill Creek Park" celebrates the restoration of Mill Creek from a stagnant pond into a free-flowing stream thanks to a dam removal. "Paddling the Huron River Water Trail" highlights the different personalities of the Huron River that await paddlers - from the "up north" feel to the city experience to the Great Lake Erie.

HRWC Staff

We strive daily to be the ultimate “river thinkers.” Our passion, educational training and professional experience strengthen HRWC efforts. And with the support of many partners, including our members, donors and volunteers, we lead the initiatives, implement the programs and advance the shared vision of a healthy, thriving Huron River.
